First sentence: The flash game has only one button, just like your favorite jenky arcade machine. This sentence tells the reader where they can play the game and what their options are. Second sentence. There are no long cutscenes, no complicated plot twists, just pure skill and decision making. This is good because it tells the reader what to expect. It lets them know that the game play will be fast paced and not complicated. It also tells them why to download the game (because of its simple design). Last sentence: So go ahead and download this awesome game now! This sentence uses an exclamation point to tell the reader to do something right now. This helps draw in readers who might have been hesitating before they read it. This paragraph is important to the article because it gives the reader a chance to get excited about the game. It lets them know all about what they can expect when they play it, so they won't feel surprised. It also uses an exclamation point to convince them to download it right away, so they won't have any regrets for not downloading it. Hook sentence: The flash game has only one button, just like your favorite jenky arcade machine. This is a good way to introduce the reader to an entertaining video game. It also gives them reasons for downloading it (ease of use). Some of the key words used in this sentence are "simply", "casual" and "skill". These key words will help the reader understand what is good about the game. Game art: A lot of attention has been paid to this, because it is important to tell the reader how attractive it is. Hopefully, when they play it, they will like it too. This sentence tells what kind of art is in the game. Using "like" in conjunction with "this" makes this sound like a definite statement; in other words, that no matter how they feel about this art, they should like the game's art. First example: The only other thing you have to worry about is your opponents, because they can be a handful. They tend to have a lot of money and use it wisely. This example tells why the reader should download the game. The fact that opponents are hard shows the reader that they will have a challenge if they play this game. It also gives them information on what kind of opponents they might face. "They tend to have a lot of money and use it wisely" tells the reader that their opponents will try to win against them by using their own skill instead of luck or random events, something that could be frustrating to players.
